Hitch Delays Presentation of Pinero-Barrie-Shaw Bill.

SIR H. TREE IN VAUDEVILLE

Leading English Actor Taken to Task for Lowering Standards of Profession.

London, Sept. 28 .- The three one-act plays by Sir A. W. Pinero, J. M. Barrie Bernard Shaw which Charles Frohman is soon to offer at the Duke of York's Theatre as the evening's bill have now been submitted. and on account of a strange coincidence Mr. Barrie has withdrawn his and substituted another, which he had previously written. When the manuscripts were handed in it was found that Pinero and Barrie had chosen almost identical effects for the development of the principal situation. The works in other respects were not at all alike, as Pinero's was a costume play of more than one hundred years ago, whereas the Barrie play was modern. When Mr. Frohman's teader discovered the most unusual situation described, Mr. Barrie promptly withdrew his manu script and made a substitution.

Next week will see three openings 'The Turning Point," at the St. James's Theatre on Tuesday; "The Open Door," at the Lyceum on Wednesday, and "Door Mats." at Wyndham's on Thursday.

Sir G. Alexander's Views.

As "The Turning Point" is an adaptation from the French, Sir George Alexander has been asked why at this period of English dramatic history he goes to France for a play for one of London's principal theatres. Sir George says that the chief reason why he chose "The Turning Point" was because the quality of the story inter-

"Given a good plot and a good subject that compel attention, it does not very much matter whether the play was originally written in French or in English," he said, and then went on to give some views on schools of drama. Replying to a question as to whether he thought a new school of dramatists had risen in England, he said:

"I think there is always a new school making an appeal to the public. The young always have a new outlook. Think of the schools which have come forward during my term of management! Pinero, Wilde, Hobbes, Hope, Mason, these and many others in the beginning struck a new and definite note, but as the years pass the novelty ceases to surprise and a new generation springs up, just as it has now in Galsworthy, Houghton, Calthorp, Coleby, Chilton and Chapin. They infuse new life that brings into being a different view. This constant change of tone and outlook is very clearly exemplified in "Milestones," where there are three distinct periods shown, and in each the view of life changes. So with dramatists. What was strong meat in the 80's is but milk and water

A "Milestones" Dinner.

The O. P. Club will give a "Mile-stones" dinner on October 20, at which it will try to have speakers and actors representing the three periods of the play—1860, 1885 and 1912.

Sir Herbert Tree has been taken se-verely to task this week for appearing vaudeville, and, in reply to the charge of lowering his standards, says
"So far from being injurious to the drama, I believe that the result of this and kindred representations will be in time to create a taste for the theatre on the part of that section of the publication. lic which has hitherto been largely ignorant of or indifferent to its claims. As to the indignity of such representations, I may remark that religion may be preached from the pulpit and also in a desert.

"It is the quality of the religion that matters. As with religion, so with art. Let us of the theatre 60 our best to create a taste for the drama among music hall audiences, and they in time will dealers here for the theatre, and will develop a love for the theatre, and be drafted into the regular army of our The music hall has been steadily improving in the quality of its entertainment, and I think the infusion of the dramatic element has contrib-uted in no small degree to the result."

"LITTLE CAFE" NOT STRONG Cyril Maude Well Fitted, but

Play Is Weak.

London, Sept. 28.-Cyrll Maude profuced at the Playhouse to-night "The Little Café," preceded by Wilfred T. Colby's "Aunt Bessie" as a curtain raiser. "Aunt Bessie" is a delightful little comedy of English lower middle class life, excellently acted by D. Munroe and Arthur Curtis, Miss Maba Garden and Miss Jean Blair. Miss Blair's performance as the cleverly managing wife of a rather dull and heavy witted tradesman was especially good, but the performance of all four players reached a high level of character study. Moreover, the sketch is compact, well written and clever. It is unfortunate that the same cannot be said of the principal part of the evening's programme, "The Little Café," an English adaptation of a French farce by Tristan Bernard, To judge by the length of the cast which Mr. Maude recruited, the piece might, before the rise of the curtain, be suspected of being a Drury Lane melodrama; it is not often that a modern farce boasts a company numbering forty-eight. But the story of "The Little Café" is decked out with a good deal of embroidery; into it are to be introduced some of the most stimulating features of a musical play. The action of the second act takes place in the Café Fifine, in Paris, which, although you may not find the name in the directory, is in reality one of the most elegant and up-to-date restaurants existing in the gay city. Essentially a supper resort, it is thither that the "fine fleur" of Paris society flocks to wind up the evening with re-sketch of a middle aged Frenchman, canny, yet susceptible of generosity. But the play itself was tedious, the idea being good intrinsically, but amateurishly worked out.

It cannot even be said that "The Little Café" contains clever lines to justify its existence, while, with the exception of the principal part, the majority of the characters were interpreted in a burlesque spirit, reaching about the level of the stage Englishman as known in America twenty years ago Mr. Maude's principal support came from the following: Miss Maidie Hope, Charles Glenney, Miss Madeline Seymour, Charles Bibby, Miss Vera Coburn, Hastings Lynn, Miss Daisy Thimm, John Harwood, Mark Paton and Ernest Graham.

ount Terauchi. Baron Yun Chi He, formerly a Cabinet ninister, and several others of the more prominent among the accused persons, were sent to prison for ten years, while various terms of punishment were inflicted on all the other prisoners except nine, who were released.

Tokio, Sept. 28.-Governor General Count Terauchi left to-night for Corea to reume his duties.

The introduction into the Corean conspiracy trial of the names of several American missionaries, prominent among them Bishop Merriman C. Harris of the Methodist Episcopal Church, attracted world-wide attention to the case. The trial began on June 28, and some of the prisoners, nearly all of whom were Christian converts, made confessions implicating the missionaries, which they afterward withdrew, as they declared they had made them under torture.

The trial was postponed on several occasions, as counsel for the defence impeached the court for partiality and for refusing to permit the examination of important witnesses. Several new judges were appointed in consequence of this action of counsel. The Japanese government and the Corean officials disavowed at all times the existence of a campaign against the Christian missionaries, and declared they had not the faintest suspicion of any complicity or foreknowledge on the part of the missionaries in connection with the for French gold for New York is being plot. They also declared that they had viewed the missionaries' labors in Corea with favor.

This statement is made in a dispatch from Hamburg to-day, which does not mention the total of the new loan, but states that it is to be guaranteed by the receipts from railroads and mines.

FROM WOMEN TO CITY

Benefaction, First of Its Kind in 136 Years, Wholesome Precedent, Stover Says.

WILLIAM B. ISHAM HONORED

Sister and Daughter Give Their Shares of Estate with Old Mansion on Historic Hill to Perpetuate His Name.

On a hilltop made famous in the days when this country was being born a housand persons met yesterday afteroon to celebrate the gift to the city of the first public park of any magnitude which it has received since that time. It emained for two women to establish what Park Commissioner Stover hopes will form a wholesome precedent, after 130 ears of neglect of the city's need of oreathing places on the part of her wealthy sons. They were Mrs. Julia Isham Taylor and Miss Flora E. Isham. The new park was part of the estate of he late William B. Isham, father and prother of the givers. It will be named, n honor of him, Isham Park. When the trustees of the estate learned of Mrs. Taylor's intention to give her share to the city, they assigned to her the hill on which yesterday's celebration was held and the old family mansion which surmounts it. This part of the park runs back from Broadway above 212th street.

Immediately upon the announcement of Mrs. Taylor's plan, Miss Isham pledged her portion of the estate to the same purpose, and purchased out of her own pocket enough land to the northward to extend the park to Spuyten Duyvil Creek. This addition, to prevent any building from going up between the park and the water, cost her in the neighborhood of

The moving spirit of yesterday's cele bration was ex-Judge James P. Davenport, president of the North Manhattan Taxpayers' Association, which first suggested this means of acknowledging the city's gratitude for the generous gift ceremonies, introduced as the first speaker Park Commissioner Stover, whose ing words drew attention to the absence of the city's benefactors from the demon stration in their behalf.

Will Celebrate Again.

"When the matter of this celebration was first broached," began the Commis "both Borough President Mcdoner, Aneny and I were opposed to holding it in the absence of the givers, but so long a time has now passed since the gift was made that I do not feel we can allow another day to go by without some publi interrogated agreed upon this one demonstration of our gratitude. It also shows that from El Paso 40,000 rifles had been sent across the border and from Los Angeles 100. It was further shown that more than 500 tons of dynamite has been used for mining as well as for the showing up of bridges. No dynamite is permitted to go into Mexico at the present time. first time since the Revolution that an individual had voluntarily given a tract of Commissioner appealed to the other owners of large estates along Spuyten Duyvil, some of whom were in the audience, to follow the public spirited example set by the two women.

"A Connecting Link."

"I want this park," said the Commis sloner. "to be a connecting link between Central Park and lower Riverside Drive believe it will be long before you can ride or drive or walk from Sheridan's statu through Central Park, up the Seventh avenue parkway and along the Speedway to this park, and I ask your assistance to put a continuous park along the water's edge from that bend to West 72d street." Reginald Pelham Bolton spoke on the fitness of the place as a public domain through its historical associations. The first white man to settle upon it was a Dutch wool washer from New Amsterdam, who built a rude hut there in 1640. Fifteen years later he met death at the hands of the Indians within a stone's throw of where the house now stands.

Borough President McAneny praised the fine spirit behind such a gift-a gift which would provide thousands of children with the healthful, beautiful surroundings amid which the givers themselves grew up. Ex-Congressman William S. Bennet and A series of folk dances and games were grounds under the direction of William J. Lee, supervisor of the Bureau of Recreation.

A reception in the mansion closed th celebration. Among the organizations represented in the celebration were the Mount Washington Men's Club, the Washington Heights Taxpayers' Association, the American Scenic and Historic Preser vation Society and the City History Club.
